

ANDES RANGES

Better Cooking for Less Money

Your cooking can be no better than your range

Some ranges would spoil the cooking of the best cook in the world, just as poor tools would prevent a carpenter from doing good work. The Climax Andes, illustrated, is of modern design, simple, plain, decidedly attractive. It has the Andes easy-working grate, strength in vital parts, large fire box, full-size square oven, and hot-water reservoir. It is made of all new iron and therefore will last longer than ranges made of scrap iron. Come in and see it—IF YOU LIKE GOOD COOKING.

LEATHER PLANTS AT WOBURN BURN

Loss of $150,000 Was Sustained in Troublesome Blaze To-day

FIREMEN FOUGHT FOR MANY HOURS

The Fire Is Believed to Have Been Caused by Spontaneous Combustion

Woburn, Mass., Oct. 9.—The leather district in North Woburn was threatened last night by a fire which was not brought under control until an early hour to-day. Damage estimated at $150,000 was caused to the James Z. Haley company and Andrew Peterson & Son's plants, which were destroyed, and to the buildings of the Finner Leather company. The fire was believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion.

PLAYED A TIE GAME

Barre Cutups and the Goddard Second Team, 6 to 6.

In a fast game of football between the Goddard second team and the North Barre Cutups in four eight-minute periods yesterday afternoon, Catto of the Barre team scored one touchdown and Freeman of the seminary team scored one touchdown. The game ended a tie, 6 to 6. Both teams played a clean game. The Goddard boys worked several forward passes in the second half. The last was passed to Freeman, who ran about 30 yards and made the touchdown. The town boys made their touchdown by slowly pushing back the seminary boys' line. The lineup for the teams was as follows:

Goddard.	Cutups.
Berry, re.	Le. Smith
Garwood, rg.	Mike S.
Hart, rt.	Valisi
Willey, c.	Romery
Guy, le.	Fortier
Tucker lg.	Cassan
Keller, lt.	Reghini
Freeman, lhb.	Parkie

WEST FAIRLEE

Thomas Bennett is here in the interest of the Ely-Copperfield Mining company.

George Coburn of Cambridge, Mass., is visiting his brother in the new store. A very pretty wedding took place at Post Mills at 8 p. m. Oct. 4, when Miss Alice Terhune, a popular school teacher of Post Mills and George Raymond Judd of West Fairlee were married by Rev. C. N. Crook of this place.

F. I. Perkins of this place has gone to Post Mills to work in the red shop.

Resolutions.

Resolutions adopted by Cobble Hill grange, in memory of our late sister, Mrs. Ella F. Parkhurst.

Whereas, Cobble Hill grange is again called upon to mourn the loss of a dear sister, Mrs. Ella F. Parkhurst, one who in life embodied the best principles of our order; and,

Whereas, we remember with gratitude, her loyalty and ready helpfulness to the order, her ability to always say and do the right thing at the right time and above all to cover with a mantle of charity the failings of others; therefore, be it

Resolved, that as patrons of husbandry, we extend our sincerest sympathy to the bereaved family of our departed sister, and may they be comforted with the hope that "there is another and better world—"

Where everlasting spring abides, And never-fading flowers.

And be it further Resolved, that as a mark of respect our charter be draped in mourning for a period of 30 days, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family of our sister, a copy be spread upon our records and a copy printed in The Barre Daily Times.

SCHOOLS LAUDED FOR WAR WORK

been most highly commended by high authorities everywhere.

"During the school year 1918 Miss Rose Lucia wrote a series of articles entitled, 'The Neighborhood Savings Book,' dealing with school savings, and these were furnished to the schools by the state director of war savings.

"In 1917 the farmers of Vermont faced a serious condition. Each week saw a number of young men on our farms decreased, yet the farmer was urged to increase his production. More important still was the fact that considerable numbers of those who had ordinarily been available for work on the farms were obtaining employment outside the state in shipbuilding and munition works. Those who had occasion to ride about the state observed the farmer and his family working early at morning and late at night. To meet this emergency the schools allowed those who volunteered to assist the farmer to leave before the closing of the school term and to return in the fall somewhat later than other students. Principals and teachers took it upon themselves to assist such volunteers with their school subjects so that no boy nor girl should fail to make their grades on account of this service.

"In 1918 the shortage of farm labor was more critical than during the previous year. The same plan was followed in the public schools and in addition three camps for periods of two weeks each were conducted and the Theodore N. Vail agricultural school and farms instructed city and village boys in some of the more common duties connected with the farm. In all 150 boys were so instructed. More than 90 per cent of these boys proved to be efficient laborers on the farms. While they assisted the farmer they were gaining the appreciation and sympathy with the farmer that will be valuable to the state as time passes.

"In passing, it will be interesting to know that it was a Vermont boy who wrote in verse a call issued by the national director of the Boys' Working Reserve. This poem received national recognition. It can be found in the 'Vermonters' the Camp Vail number.

"Near the close of the war the pupils in the schools of Vermont were very generally organized as 'Messengers for Uncle Sam.' The purpose of this organization was to bring important messages from the government to the homes in the briefest possible time. The organization was devised by the officers of the National Education association and Vermont has the distinction of being one of the first, if not the first state, to so organize its schools.

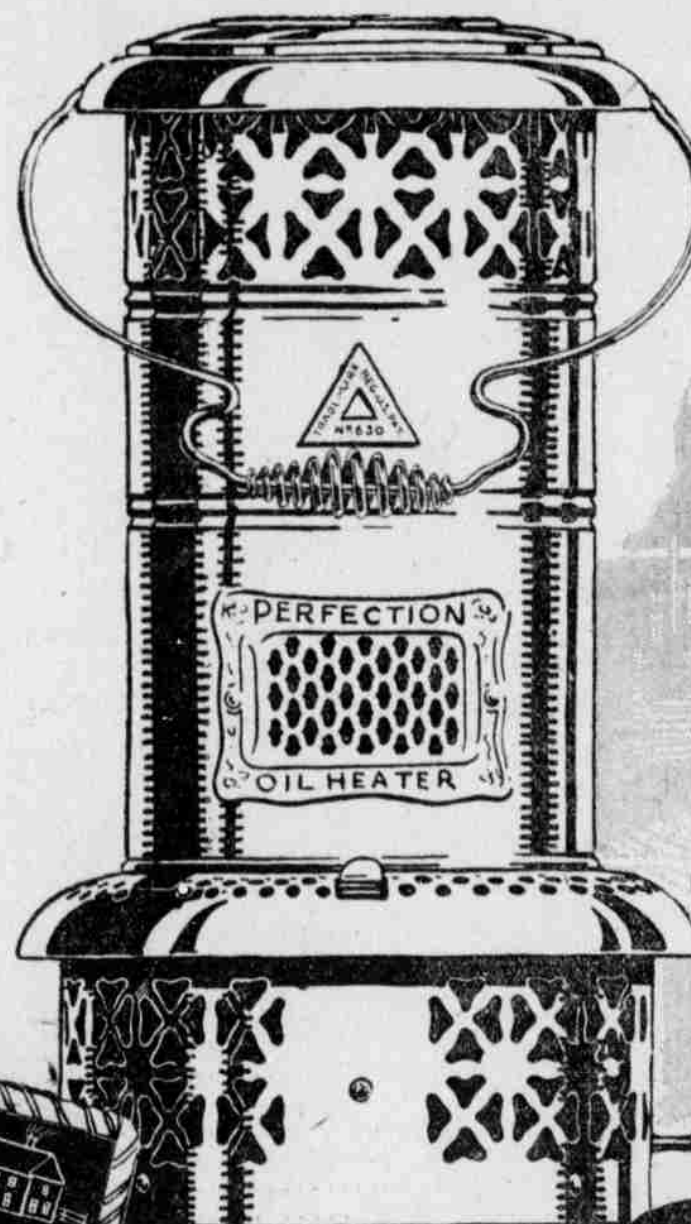

"Many of the schools had Junior Red Cross organizations.

"In the United War Work drive conducted late in 1918, the boys and girls in the public schools of Vermont did their full share. No task that has been assigned to the teachers and pupils has failed to meet a hearty response.

"I have mentioned thus far some of the tangible achievements of the schools during the period of the war. I am confident that it will not be out of place if I mention one or two achievements that are not as concrete, but that are nevertheless supremely important. First among these achievements I would place the continuance of schools during the past three years. Investigations show that in some states one rural school in ten was closed for the lack of a teacher. In Vermont almost no schools were closed for this reason. This was not due to high salaries or to lack of opportunity for our teachers to go elsewhere. It was the direct outcome of the spirit of patriotism and loyalty that has always characterized the teaching-staff of this state. The second important feature is to be found in the fact that in only one instance was the patriotism of any teacher in the public schools of Vermont questioned. During this critical period parents and the citizens of this state were able to trust implicitly in the loyalty of our public school teachers. This has brought to the teaching profession of Vermont a dignity and respect that will not be lost.

"Throughout the various campaigns superintendents, principals and teachers have devoted time and energy without reserve. There must always come to these persons a feeling of satisfaction as the result of the war work achievement in Vermont schools."
